Presentation Outline

The California Emergency Services Association (CESA) is happy to offer a presentation that highlights how CESA and CalChiefs can work together for the Future of Emergency Management in the State of California. Emergency Management Offices throughout California are organized under Executive Officials, Law Enforcement, General Services, Health & Human Service, and of course.....Fire. No matter where an Emergency Management office physically resides, the job of Emergency Managers remains the same. During this presentation, CESA representatives will provide an overview of the job of Emergency Managers with highlights on their role in the Mitigation, Preparedness, Response, and Recovery phases of Emergency Management.

Ray Riordan Bio

With 36 years of emergency management experience, Raymond Riordan is currently the Director of the City Manager's Office of Emergency Management for the City of San José, CA, the tenth largest city in the United States. He was hired following the historic February 2017 Coyote Creek Flood, and assisted the City in its recovery from the flood and instituting an action to address the over 240 items identified in the post-disaster after action and improvement report. His past employment included Program Manager for Emergency Preparedness for the City of San Ramon Police Department in California, Acting Executive Director of the California Utilities Emergency Association, the Acting Security and Emergency Manager for East Bay Municipal Utility District, and Senior Emergency Planner for Contra Costa County, CA. He is a Certified Emergency Manager, recognized by the International Association of Emergency Managers (IAEM).

Among his professional awards, he is a three-time recipient of the International Association of Emergency Managers Association Partners in Preparedness Award and a three-time recipient of the California Emergency Services Association President's Award for leadership in emergency management.

He completed a BS degree from Santa Clara University, and an MS degree in Industrial Organization from San José State University, and he has published articles on emergency planning in several journals, including the American Water Works Association Journal Magazine.

Dana Carey Bio

Dana Carey has been working in various areas of Emergency Management for Yolo County for over fifteen years. While at the Yolo County Health Department Dana was tasked with overseeing planning and training for the Medical and Health responders of the County and served as the County's Medical and Health Operational Area Coordinator. In 2013 she transferred to the County Office of Emergency Services to focus on a wide variety of emergency mitigation, planning, response and recovery activities. Dana has been involved in many State and Federal projects to enhance preparedness and response. She has been involved in as many OES projects as possible including: participating in the SEMS Specialist Training Committee, the SEMS Advisory Board, the CESA Inland Chapter, the CESA Training Committee, the Emergency Management Professional Development project, various Emergency Management GIS projects and development of Emergency Management training curricula.
